It is no longer considered a disgrace for any boy or girl of the wealthier families to take work in these subjects. They take considerable pride in their accomplishments. Owing to the fact that a sufficient number of ninth and tenth grade pupils have not always been available in the smaller towns, the work has been discontinued in some of them. The department has also encountered considerable difficulty in securing properly trained teachers at the salaries offered, and consequently the work could not be continued in certain municipalities. Home economics and manual training are both firmly established in the school system and are valuable educational factors in the training of the boys and girls. The department is planning to extend the work to...
