Not illustrated. 1802 Excerpt: . . . it is said, that gold is 19 times heavier than water, we mean, that having two equal masses, the one of gold, the other of water, that which is of gold will have 19 times the weight of that which is of water. When we thus express ourselves, we say nothing of the absolute weight of bodies, we only speak by way of comparison, and with a reference always to masses of an equal size. Neither is it of importance, whether the size be great or small, provided they be equal. 35A Aug, 1760. LETTER XLVII. Terms relative to Gravity, and their true Import. Gravity, or weight, seems, so essential to the nature of bodies, that it is almost impossible to form the idea of a body divested of this quality. And its influence is so universal, in all our operations upon body, that we must, in every instance, pay attention to its gravity, or weight. As to our own persons, whether we stand, sit, or lie, we continually feel the effect of the gravity of our own body; we could never fall, if the body were not, as well as all its parts, endowed with this force. Language itself is regulated according to this property of bodies. The place toward which a body tends in its descent, we term low; and the opposite direction from the body, we term high. It must be remarked, that when a body, in falling, is at perfect liberty, it...
