The Deloitte study also noted that New Starts project sponsors miss the opportunity to use alternative project delivery methods because of the lack of early commitment of federal funding for the projects. To encourage the private sector involvement needed, project sponsors, consultants, and experts we interviewed suggested that FTA use letters of intent or early systems work agreements. Through a letter of intent, FTA announces its intention to obligate an amount from future available budget authority to a project. A challenge of using letters of intent is that they can be misinterpreted as an obligation of federal funds, when in fact they only signal FTAs intention to obligate future funds should the project meet all New Starts criteria and requirements. In contrast, an early systems work agreement obligates an amount of available budget authority to a project. The challenge of using an early systems work agreement is that FTA can only use these agreements with projects that will be granted an FFGA, thus limiting FTAs ability to use these agreements for projects in the pipeline. Consistently use road maps or similar project schedules: Project sponsors said that FTA should more consistently use road maps or similar tools to define the project sponsors and FTAs expectations and responsibilities for moving the project forward. Without establishing these expectations, project sponsors have little information about how long it will take FTA to review its request to move from alternatives analysis to preliminary engineering, for example. This lack of information makes it difficult for the project..
